BOLSHEVISTS PLAN FORCE TO CONTROL NEW POLAND

Soviet Republic Demanded By Reds To End Controversy

GERMANS BLOCK

Rumania's Isolation Is Factor In Dealings For Peace

SOCIALISTS WAIL

Invasion Of Russians To Be Opposed By Party Of Commoners

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 4.—A design to impose Bolshevism upon Poland by force appears to be actually in process of accomplishment. The Moscow Wireless announces that a provisional revolutionary Soviet has been formed in the occupied parts of Poland with the Pole, Dsershinsky, a sinister figure who is head of the Extraordinary Commission, as one of its leaders. Its manifesto says that peace is only possible with a Soviet Poland and that, when the Government is overthrown, a Soviet Republic will be established.

ANXIETY IN ENGLAND

London, August 4.—The military situation in Poland is arousing considerable anxiety in view of the uncompromising attitude of the Bolsheviks. The question of helping Poland to defend her frontiers, as defined by the Allies, is complicated by Germany's obstructionist tactics with regard to the use of the Danzig corridor, which is the sole communication with Poland.

Germany in spite of her protestations to the contrary is strongly suspected of playing the Bismarckian role of fishing in troubled waters. There is at present no idea of despatching British troops to Poland but French circles seem to favor sending some Colonial detachments.

The Bolshevik advance in Eastern Galicia, furthermore, raises the problem of preventing the isolation of Rumania and the invasion of Hungary.

TO CRUSH POLAND

The Daily Telegraph understands, that in view of the breakdown of the Baranovitchi negotiations, and the obvious intention of the Bolsheviks to crush Poland, the British Government has decided to suspend all negotiations with the Soviet Delegates in London with regard to the resumption of trade relations and, if the Soviet armies persist in their efforts to enter Warsaw, the Russian delegation will be required to leave England.

Warsaw, August 3.—The Central Committee of Polish Socialists has approved the decision of the Socialist Party Executive to take part in the Coalition Government of National Defense.

The Committee has also issued a manifesto to all supporters of the Socialist Party urging concentration in repelling the Bolshevik invasion.

NO LONDON CONFERENCE

Paris, August 4.—The Agence Havas states that the British Government has informed the Bolshevik Government by wireless that in view of the latter's pretention to begin with Poland not only an armistice but peace negotiations, the idea of a London conference must be abandoned.

London, August 4.—Communications from General Wrangel, dated July 30, report successful fighting along the whole northeastern front. Many prisoners and guns have been captured and enemy attacks heavily repulsed.

On the Waldheim front Red cavalry of the second army was put to flight with heavy losses. The White troops have retaken Kurwoon monastery near Kakhovka: the enemy had desecrated churches, defaced ikons and used altar cloths to make tobacco pouches.

Ford Tells What Union Will Do For Far East

ALEXANDER HUME FORD

By ALEXANDER HUME FORD
Secretary of the Pan-Pacific Union

THE Pan-Pacific Union, a branch of which is now established in Shanghai, has been officially recognised by a number of Governments about the Great Ocean, the United States, Australia, New Zealand and Hawaii having already made appropriations for its support, while Canada and the Philippines are to do so, while Japan, as well as most others of the Pacific lands, have sent delegates to the first of the Conferences of the Pan-Pacific Congress, now meeting in Honolulu.

FIRST OF SERIES

The present Conference, the first of a series, is that of the Pan-Pacific Scientific Conference, at which is gathered some sixty of the leading scientists of the world and from Pacific lands, but all interested in the scientific problems of the Pacific. Dr. H. E. Gregory of Yale is Chairman.

The next Conference will be the Pan-Pacific Educational Conference, called by the Department of the Interior of the United States Government, with Commissioner of Education, Dr. P. P. Claxton, as Chairman. The Department of Commerce will call the Pan-Pacific Commercial Conference, for which Mr. Franklin Lane will be Chairman and will spend a month next year in Honolulu conferring with the commercial delegates from every Pacific land.

HOOVER INVITED

It is expected that Mr. Herbert Hoover will preside at the Pan-Pacific Food Conservation Conference and Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, if his political duties permits, at the Pan-Pacific Art Conference and exhibit called by the American Federation of Arts for next September.

Dr. Reinsch, in an address at a Pan-Pacific lunch in Washington, attended by the ambassadors of Pacific lands and presided over by Mr. Franklin K. Lane, then Secretary of the Interior—spoke for China and suggested the calling of an Art Conference, dwelling on the art of China and the interest of the Chinese in an exhibit of her art wares at a Central Pacific point. A representative of the American Federation of Arts asked that his association be allowed to select from such a collection at the Pan-Pacific Art exhibit, offering to exhibit the Chinese Art wares for two years in the larger American cities, lecturing on Chinese Art and selling the collection at the end of the two years, then sending delegates to Hawaii to select another choice selection from the Pan-Pacific Art exhibit to send on a similar tour. The Pan-Pacific Union plans an art building in Honolulu 200 feet square, in which these exhibits will be housed and where collections may be selected for use in any Pacific land. Educational and Commercial exhibits from Pacific lands will be collected for similar distribution.

COLLECTING FILMS

The Pan-Pacific Union is also making a collection of Commercial and Industrial films from Pacific lands to be sent throughout the world to demonstrate the advantages offered in Pacific lands and communities.

It was one of these films shown by the Pan-Pacific Union Secretary before the two Houses of Congress that suggested the visit of the Congressmen to Pacific lands.

President Wilson, who, as is the President of China, is an Honorary President of the Pan-Pacific Union, sent for these films and had them shown in his bedroom, when he lay sick.

He sent, as soon as he was able

Shift Is Made At Canton While Changes Are Made In North

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tientsin, August 5.—Chin Yung-peng left for Peking this afternoon.

Although fighting ceased a fortnight ago the railways are still in a chaotic condition and great inconvenience is being caused to travellers and merchants. The trains from Tientsin to Peking and vice versa take 6 or 8 hours, and sometimes 10 instead of 3 and the goods traffic has practically not yet been resumed.

The conditions are similar on the Pehan and Tsinpu lines. Foreigners, travelling on the latter, complain of the swarms of soldiers, who daily board the trains without tickets and occupy most or all of the first-class accommodation.

SOUTHERN TROOPS MOVE

Canton, August 4.—There have been considerable movements of troops in Kwangtung during the last few days. General Liu Chi-lu, the Defense Commissioner of Swatow, is recruiting more men.

The Provincial Bank of Kwangtung will start business within a few days' time. The Bank will make an issue of notes, against which the Government will require that there shall be a forty percent specie security.

Bank of China notes have dropped to 77 percent of their face value.

CHINESE OPTIMISTIC

Peking, August 6.—General Wu Pei-fu arrived in Peking quietly this morning. He was engaging in the official conferences this afternoon. General Wu Pei-fu's arrival has somewhat dispelled the pessimism, arising from the arbitrary attitude of General Chang Tso-lin.

Generals Chang Tso-lin and Tsao Kun were received in audience by the President yesterday morning when measures for the restoration of peace with the South and for the formation of a Cabinet under Chin Yung-peng were discussed. According to information from Presidential circles the discussions between Hsu Shih-chang and Generals Chang Tso-lin and Tsao Kun are proceeding satisfactorily.

Several matters have yet to be talked over but up to the present perfect agreement has been reached. The principle of the disbandment of superfluous troops has been accepted. The question of the dissolution of Parliament will pro-

REINSCH HEEDS WISCONSIN CALL TO BE SENATOR

Former American Minister, Now In Shanghai, Is Honored By Democrats

TO CAMPAIGN ON ISSUES

Firm Believer In League Of Nations And Expansion Of China Trade

Dr. Paul Samuel Reinsch, former United States Minister to China and later counsellor to the Chinese Republic, at present a visitor in Shanghai, yesterday cabled his acceptance of the Senatorial nomination tendered him by the unanimous vote of the Democratic State Convention of Wisconsin, his native commonwealth.

Dr. Reinsch received notification of his nomination while in mid-Pacific, en route to the Far East with the Congressional party now being entertained in this city. His decision to accept, however, was not made until yesterday, principally because he had not entirely assured himself that he was prepared to enter the American political arena.

Seen at the Astor House yesterday afternoon by a representative of THE CHINA PRESS, the former Minister confirmed the report that he had accepted the honor conferred upon him by the Wisconsin convention, and stated that he would return to America as soon as possible and make a "modest" campaign for election.

TO AWAKEN AMERICA

Dr. Reinsch had several very interesting things to say anent the possibilities for awakening America to the full significance of her standing in the Far East—particularly China—should he be fortunate enough to be elected to the United States Senate.

"It has been a great pleasure to me," he said, "to see the numbers of distinguished American business men, bankers, statesmen and students of economics who have recently bent their steps toward China and studied conditions here. This will lead to a first-hand knowledge of the country over there in America, where so many false impressions of China and the Chinese obtain today.

"Naturally, should I be returned to the Senate of the United States, it would be my desire—as well as my duty—to do all in my power to picture China correctly to my colleagues, and to give the Congress what benefit I could, of the years which I have spent in the Far East.

"America has great opportunities and great responsibilities—moral responsibilities—in China and, being deeply interested in

America Must Provide For Companies In China, Seitz Tells Congressmen

America's Trade Industry Lies In Pacific Business Asserts Legislator In Address At Tiffin In Honor Of Visitors

Two United States Senators and nineteen Representatives of the American Congress at a tiffin at the American Club yesterday were given the real facts regarding the needs of American business and American interests in China. The tiffin was given by the committees of the American Chamber of Commerce of China, the American Association of China and the Far Eastern American Bar Association and some indication of the interest in the proceedings is conveyed in the fact that the discussions lasted from 12:30 o'clock until nearly 4 o'clock.

Two chief subjects were discussed, "American Owned Consular Buildings in China," by Dr. S. A. Ransom of the American Association, and the "Foreign Trade Law for the Incorporation of American China Companies," by C. L. Seitz, of the American Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Seitz being introduced by H. H. Arnold, president of the chamber.

TO AID FOREIGN TRADE

The notable feature of the tiffin was the close interest of the congressmen in the statement of American needs and a rousing speech by Congressman Dyer of St. Louis, in which he pledged the congressional party to full support for the foreign trade legislation to place American business in China on an even basis with other nationals.

Mr. Dyer talked for nearly 30 minutes and was frequently applauded as he told of the work that had been accomplished by congress in providing helpful legislation for America's foreign trade.

CITES COMMERCE

He referred to the Webb-Pomerene Law permitting combinations for foreign trade purposes, the Foreign Banking Act which provides elastic credit for import firms, the Shipping Bill which will enable American ships to carry most of America's $12,000,000,000 foreign commerce and then said that the present law which had been drawn up by the American Chamber of Commerce of China in co-operation with Hon. Charles Denby some four years ago, now had excellent chance of passage in the new congress which assembles in December.

DESTINY LIES IN PACIFIC

"America's future trade destiny lies in the Pacific," said Mr. Dyer, who is a member of the House judiciary Committee, "and I think I can pledge my associates on this trip, to a full support of this measure and any other legitimate measure which will place American business on an even footing with competitors of other nationalities."

He than explained that his district, St. Louis had a particular interest in China "because it is the largest manufacturing city in America that is nearest to the China market." He told of a newly established barge line down the

BRITISH PREPARE TO PUT NATION IN OIL TRADE

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, August 4.—The Department of Commerce in a report to the Lands Committee of the Senate says that it appears that the British Government is definitely going into the oil business and cites in this connection the British Government's acquisition of two-third of the stock of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company.

The report states that it seems imperative for the United States Government to take the same course or to find a way of preventing as far as possible a monopoly of the future sources of oil supply by nationals of foreign countries.

London, August 4.—A War Office communique states that the situation on the Lower Euphrates is quieter and that the Arabs, who attacked the posts to the north and north-west of Hilla, suffered heavy losses, leaving 130 dead. There have been further small raids, particularly near Jerbojiak. The Kufa garrison is still holding out. Part of the town was on fire three days ago.

Los Angeles, August 4.—Further details of the accident, which resulted in the death of the American aviator, Lieutenant Omar Locklear, yesterday, show that the airman was performing at night amid the concentrated beams of searchlights. He dropped a rocket, which he followed with a nose-dive so closely that the flaming projectile set fire to the aeroplane, which crashed to the ground from a height of 200 feet.

SING SONG GIRL MURDER SUSPECT CAUGHT, REPORT

Man Arrested In Shantung Said To Resemble Police Picture

Yen Jui-seng, the Shanghai youth who was suspected of having murdered Lien Yin, a famous sing-song girl here recently, has been arrested by police of a Shantung village, according to news received at Shanghai yesterday. The municipal police here has been informed to this effect and it is expected that the prisoner will be brought down here for identification.

Yen disappeared following the discovery of the body of the unfortunate sing song girl in a wheat field near Siccawei in Chinese territory. Foul play was evident. A sash was found round her neck and the girl was apparently strangled to death after having been robbed of her jewels, which were valued at $6,000.

Yen, according to the mother of the victim, had sent for the girl for a joy ride on the night when she disappeared. The chauffeur stated that the car was borrowed from a Chu, the son of a prominent Chinese merchant who was on intimate terms with the suspect.

After securing the consent of the girl to take the ride, Yen is said to have dismissed the chauffeur and had driven the car himself.

UNDERGROUND LINE FOR JAPS TO U.S. SAYS CONGRESSMAN

(Reuter's Service)

London, August 4.—The New York correspondent of the Daily Mail states that interest in the Japanese question has been renewed by the statements of Mr. Albert Johnson, a member for the State of Washington in the House of Representatives and Chairman of the House Sub-Committee on Immigration and Naturalisation.

Mr. Johnson, in the course of a speech at Tacoma, Washington, spoke of "a Japanese underground system, beginning at Yokohama, leading to Honolulu and extending to Guaymas, Mexico, whereby Japanese are brought surreptitiously to the United States."

He alleged that Japanese were smuggled from Guaymas into California, the Mexican frontier guards being bribed £2 per head, and then taken by their compatriots to country districts, where they were hidden for five years, after which time they emerge into the open with their residential qualifications established.

U.S. COLONY PLAYS HOST TO GUESTS FROM HOME

Entertainment In Evening Gives Great Pleasure, Being Informal

NO ADDRESSES

Lawmakers And Guests Given Opportunity To Enjoy Themselves

The dinner of the American community of Shanghai, given last night at the Carlton Cafe for the party of visiting American legislators and officials and their families, was the crowning event of two days of entertainment in the way of receptions, visits, sight-seeing tours and affairs of various kinds. The dinner was for Americans only. There were 197 persons present.

According to an announcement made yesterday the U.S. Transport Great Northern will sail at 4 o'clock this afternoon with some 400 troops, taken aboard at Manila, and it will take also about half of the party of legislators and officials which numbers about one hundred. Most of those who remain will be in Shanghai for several more days, but no further program of entertainment has been planned. Those staying over will split into groups going to Peking and to other centers in China before returning to America.

Last night's community dinner was informal with dancing between the courses. A noteworthy feature was the fact that there was no speechmaking. The dinner was arranged by a committee composed of the heads of American organisations that arranged for the welcome to the visitors.

The party assembled between 2 o'clock and 9 o'clock in the up upstairs room of the Carlton where cocktails were served. The diners were placed at the small tables in the two big adjoining ball rooms which were decorated with greenery and flags and lighted by dimmed incandescents and Chinese lanterns.

BREAK UP HERE

The United States Congressional party, which has been royally entertained by the various Chinese and American local organisations and officials at Shanghai, will be broken up here this afternoon when part of the delegation sails on the United States Transport Great Northern for America. The tender will leave the Customs jetty at 2:30 o'clock.

Local officials, American as well as Chinese, representatives of the 21 organisations, which gave an impressive tea party at the Great Eastern Hotel yesterday, and 40 returned students, who acted as ushers during the visitors' stay will bid the party farewell at the jetty.

An eloquent plea for Sino-American co-peration in ridding the Far East of the menace of Prussianism was made by Dr. C. T. Wang, Chinese peace delegate at Versailles, who delivered the principal address of welcome at the reception at the Great Eastern Hotel. Mr. David Z. T. Yui, chairman of the united reception committee, presided. A stirring speech was delivered by Senator Thomas Sterling, who assured the audience that a people with such integrity and adaptibility cannot be conquered.

Shortly after 9 o'clock, the party was motored to the Chin Woo Athletic Association on Baikal Road. A remarkable exhibition of Chinese gymnastics and the applications of the ancient weapons was staged to the delight of the guests.

CHOW PRESIDES

Mr. S. S. Chow, treasurer of the society presided. Mr. Oong, the secretary of the organisation delivered the welcome speech and traced the history of the organisation. Both girls and boys of the society as well as the teachers performed. Refreshments were served.

It was significant that when the program opened, twenty-one bells were sounded. It was pointed out by one of the members that the ringing is done daily before the exercises to awaken the members to the humiliation of the 21 demands made by Japan in 1915.

After the inspection, the visitors were taken round the Hou Sung Cotton Mill, of which Mr. H. Y. Moh, is the manager. The guests were shown the various stages of manufacturing of cotton from its raw stage to its finished product of cloth ready for wearing.

COOED BY MOH

Mr. Moh delivered an interesting speech of welcome, in which he paid glowing tribute to American made machinery and told of the history of the mill and its future plans. The mill started to run on June 27, 1918. This is the first cotton mill in China which is equipped with American machinery and is therefore considered as a sample room of Saco-Lowell Shops. For this reason these shops have in a short period of three months—March, April, and May—obtained orders amounting to 400,000 spindles, which at present have gone up to 680,000, the large majority of customers who placed orders of such enormous amount having visited this mill and know the merits of American machinery. With the existence of this mill the old prejudice that English cotton machinery is superior to American has gradually died out.

This mill has a capital of Tls. 2,000,000. In the beginning it had 12,672 spindles and 300 looms; now it has 28,800 spindles and 396 looms. Before the end of this year, 11,104 twisters and 21,888 more spindles will be put into operation. The yarn produced in this mill is the best Chinese product ever sold on the local market.

[illegible] MILLS

Hou Sung is also the first mill to produce shirtings and jeans which likewise command the highest price. It is only a matter of time when it will undertake to produce figured cloths and other products of the best quality.

INSPECT Y. M. C. A.

The party then came back to town and inspected the Y.M.C.A. Dr. C. T. Wang, president of the association, presided. He traced in a speech the developments of the organisation and pointed out the unity of the association work throughout the country by its army of secretaries. He paid a tribute to the American secretaries who are assisting the society; and showed that the body is now purely self-supporting.

Mr. John Bourke of the United States Treasury, responded and emphasised the need of unity in China. He took for his theme Lincolnis immemorable words: "A house divided against itself cannot stand."

The thought was again taken up by Dr. Wang in conclusion and he showed that the Y.M.C.A. movement in China was tending to unify the nation.

Dr. Yui opened his remarks by pointing that there were 21 organistions acting as hosts of the Congressional party. The number 21 was especially fortunate, because it was because of the 21 demands made by Japan on China that China began to wake up and today she is fully awakened.

The speaker that mentioned three distinct lines of progress which the people of China had made, namely, ability to act promptly, power of organisation and the peoples capacity in having international relationship with other peoples. He pointed out that the 21 organisations were representative of commercial, educational, social and industrial interests and not one of them was a government body. He ventured to suggest that the reception be considered a welcome of the Chinese people to the American people.

DR. WANG'S SPEECH

Dr. Wang spoke with great emotion and held the attention of his audience from beginning to end. Said he in part:

"We welcome you to our country because we believe in the disinterested goodwill towards us. Our confidence in the integrity of the people of America and their government could be shown in sending the Anson Burlingame mission to the nations of the world to establish international relationship between China and the nations of the world 53 years ago."

Dr. Wang then stated that he wished, beside welcoming the party, to dwell on three points.

"First," he said, "China cannot be made strong and happy until education is brought within the reach of the mass of the people.

"Second, we need to develop the industrial and the Commercial possibilities of the land, the use of American machinery will help our industrial development." He cited the Hou Sung Cotton Mill, the Commercial Press and other enterprises as examples.

Lastly, Dr. Wang pleaded for international co-operation which brought the assembly to its feet.

PRUSSIANISM IN EAST

"We look to the United States for help in the settlement of the Shantung question," he said in part. "As citizens of the Republic we should not ask others for asistance. We should help ourselves. 'God helps those who help themselves.' But we feel intensely of the menace of our neighbor since her address of the 21 demands. Our minds cannot be set at ease when our integrity is threatend by Prussianism.

"I have always been asked by foreign friends to explain the Shantung question. My answer is: If you understand the Alsace-Lorraine question, you can understand the Shantung question."

Senator Sterling began by saying that Kipling's maxim of "East is East and West is West and the two shall never meet" is no longer applicable in the present united world.

The men of the party were taken at noon to the American Club and the women to the Astor House.

After tiffin the visitors were conveyed to the Commercial Press Ltd., on Paoshan Road, where an attractive program was given. A number of members of the American Chamber of Commerce was also present.

A large matshed was especially erected for the reception. Flags were flying, tables were decorated, fans were installed and flowers, scrolls and evergreens formed the decorations. Ushers who speak excellent English were appointed to take care of the visitors. Mr. Y. C. Bau, managing director of the company, presided. Dr. Fong F. Sec, English editor, made the principal address. Speeches were also made by Mr. Francais Zia and Mr. S. L. Chang.

SOUVENIRS GIVEN

Refreshments were served. A picture was taken and a band furnished some lively airs. A number of interesting souvenirs were distributed and an inspection of the plant concluded the program.

Dr. Fong Sec spoke in part as follows:

"This is a stock company, and all the shares are held by Chinese. It is also managed by Chinese, so it is a purely Chinese company. It is registered in the Board of Commerce and Industry as a limited company. The paid-up capital is $3,000,000 Mexican, divided into 30,000 shares of $100 each. The Press did over $5,000,000 of business last year. Besides the principal sales office and factory in Shanghai, the company has thirty-five branch offices and more than a thousand agencies throughout China and in foreign countries where Chinese are found. Its branch in Peking also does a large printing business. More than 2,000 hands are at work in this compound. Counting the men in the branch offices, over 3,000 persons are in the employ of the company.

"You will note that we have much American mechinery in use. We find them highly satisfactory and efficient. We intend to put in more and more of them, for they increase our efficiency. No only do we find it profitable to use machines of American make in doing our work, but we are also interested in the American methods of doing business. We have now men studying in the United States and trying to come into direct contact with business firms in your country.

COMPANY'S WORK

"In view of the great labor unrest in the world, we are glad to be able to say that we have had but little trouble with our workmen. From the beginning the managers have taken a human view of our employes, and this has no doubt contributed to the success of the company.

"The company is doing some welfare work in making the working conditions pleasant, in looking after the physical needs of our employes, in proving educational facilities for their children, etc. Owing to the increasing cost of living, the Press voluntarily increased the wages of its workmen from 10 percent to 20 percent according to a graduated scale last year. Lately, because of the high price of rice, the Press voluntarily made a special allowance for employes whose pay falls below a certain amount. Plans have been approved and $50,000 have been appropriated for erecting a dormitory building for the employes who are without homes in Shanghai. The new building will have an auditorium, kitchen and dining-room, a lobby, and bathing facilities. It will serve as a social and educational center for our workman.

"The Commercial Press has been a growth to meet the demand that the new education in China created. In this lot we have more than twelve acres of land, and our factory buildings have a floor area of about 350,000 sq. ft. In addition to the cluster of buildings that you will see, the contract has already been let for putting up a four-story reinforced concrete building on this spot at a cost of a quarter million taels for the use of our printing department."

INSPECT SHUN PAO

Members of the delegation then inspected the Shun Pao Newspaper Plant, the oldest one in China. Mr. Shi Liang-chai, managing director and Mr. T. B. Chang, manager, greeted the guests as they came into the spacious building. The remarkable rapidly of type-setting by hand of thousands of different Chinese characters and the modernised methods of administration were clearly demonstrated by China's premier newspaper plant.

Over 400 prominent Chinese attended the tea-party at the Great Eastern Hotel. The party was one of the most brilliant affairs in the social history of Shanghai. The flow of eloquence, the personality of the speakers and the audience and artistic arrangements of seating and decoration made the function most impressive.

Following the reception, the guests attended the American Community dinner at the Carlton Cafe.

bably not arise as the Houses have already ceased to function owing to the absence of many of the members from the capital. Though the situation is still complicated the outlook is hopeful.

The appointment of the new Minister of Communications has created a political struggle between the old Chiaotung clique and the Chihli Party but General Chang Tso-lin has intervened, stating that, as the others are unable to agree, he will nominate a suitable candidate, namely Wang Nai-ping, who has been General Chang Tso-lin's agent in Peking for upwards of a year. It is understood, however, that Hsu Shih-chang favors Yeh Kung-chow on the grounds that he has shown marked constructive ability as Chief Industrial Commissioner.

Chow Tze-chi is most frequently named as Minister of Finance and it is probable that Pan Fu will take over the Salt Administration, Chang Hu the Wine and Tobacco Administration and Chang Shou-ting the Currency Bureau.

Admiral Sah Chen-ping is expected to retain the portfolio of the Ministry of the Navy.

Today General Wu Pei-fu was timidly suggested as Minister of War, which appointment, the Progressives think, would go a long way towards solving the militarist problem and would reassure the country in a marked degree, but if this suggestion is supported, strong opposition can be expected from General Chang Tso-lin.

Hitherto there is no sign of the Progressive Democratic Cabinet, which the President forecasted prior to the Anfuite rising.

CLEVELAND, O.—Eugene Para reported to police Monday night that $54 of his savings which he had hidden in 2 coffee pots in his restaurant, had been stolen. Last night he assured the officers that it was all a mistake.

He explained the money was in a small coffee bag inside the pot. Forgetting the money, he said he placed the pot on a steaming radiator.

The coffee boiled over and with it the $54. "I've found the bag and the money behind the radiator," he said.

Mississippi River to New Orleans and urged the early opening of a direct steamer line from New Orleans to China by way of the Panama Canal. "The Mississippi Valley needs the products of China and we want to sell our manufactured products out here to assist in the development of this great Republic."

"China, in my opinion," said Mr. Dyer, "is the greatest potential market for America, and I feel this trip is bound to be of momentus effect in enabling myself and my associates to understand the many legislative problems now confronting America in our new position following the war. I want to assure the American merchants in China of our deep interest in every measure affecting the welfare of China and the United States." In a reference to the Philippine Islands, the speaker brought down the house by declaring:

"Thank God the guiding hand of America is still present in the Philippine Islands, which destiny has entrusted to our care with opportunity for service."

CONSULAR PROPERTY

Consul-General Cunningham was in the chair and the first address was delivered by Dr. S. A. Ransom on behalf of American-owned consular property and suitable consular buildings in all of the China treaty ports and principal cities. His remarks were closely attended and frequently applauded as he cited case after case where short-sighted policy had compelled American consular officials to live in unsuitable rented premises to the detriment of efficiency, health of officials and loss in national prestige.

Several of the Congressmen asked questions regarding the practice of other nations in regard to ownership of consular premises and Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, former American minister added his support to the measure by citing several incidents that had come to his attention while in the American government service. A brief talk was also made by Consul-General-at-Large Eberhardt regarding the recent incident in Tientsin where the American consular property had been purchased by a Japanese and the American consul-general given a six-months notice to vacate.

Dr. Reinsch told of another incident where an American firm in China in order to save the good name of its government had purchased a piece of property which it had been holding at the original price for several years in the hope that the government would eventually take it over and erect a suitable building in keeping with the wealth and standing of the United States.

PRESENTATION MADE

At this point in the proceedings each of the congressional visitors was presented with a gold-embossed leather bound book prepared by the American organisations that contained some seventy pages of material illustrated with pictures and maps and setting forth clearly and attractively the needs of the Americans in China.

The chief address on behalf of the Federal Incorporation Law for American (China) Companies was delivered by Mr. Carl L. Seitz, of the China-Pacific Company. Mr. Seitz is a member of the Executive Committee of the American Chamber of Commerce of China. His address which frequently brought applause from the visitors and other guests which included Mr. Julean Arnold and Hon. T. R. Jernigan follows:

VIEWS OF MR. SEITZ

"Our Chairman, Consul-General Cunningham, has explained the reasons which prompted us to confine ourselves at this luncheon today to the discussion of only two subjects; these two subjects being the most important issues affecting the status of America in her official and business representation in China.

"The necessity of adequate support to our Consular service and the housing of our Consular staffs at Shanghai and elsewhere in China, has been explained to you by Dr. Ransom.

SUPPORT CONSULAR SERVICE

"The honor now devolves on me to present the case of the American merchant in China and the obligation which rests upon our Government to provide laws for the protection of the American merchant by making the Federal Incorporation of American Companies in China possible.

"Much has been said and written on this matter during years gone by, by our diplomats and Consular as well as Court Officials. The American Chamber of Commerce of China has actively worked on this problem. The Members of its Executive Committee have studied the issues involved and unqualifiedly endorse the urgent necessity for action in this issue on which the future success of American Commerce in the Far East largely depends.

"In the statements I am about to make to you are points which may present new lights on the subject. The facts submitted have the endorsement of my colleagues on the Committee of the American Chamber of Commerce of China. They are based on experience in trade in China and the Far East generally, and which I ask you to accept as coming from an American born and raised in the Orient, keenly interested in the development of American Commerce.

BETTER DAYS COMING

"Despite disappointments and delays, we feel assured we are arriving nearer the day when our Senators and Congressmen at Washington will pass legislation adequately to protect American trade interests in foreign countries, and especially in extra-territorial countries, of which China is the most important.

"The needs in this legislation are twofold:

Firstly: We require Federal Incorporation for American Companies in China so that such companies may be national American Companies.

Secondly: These Federal Incorporation Laws must provide for freedom in China and other extra-territorial countries from Income Tax and Excess Profits Tax burdens in order to enable American merchants to trade on an equal footing with the merchants of other countries.

"I will now explain the first point regarding the necessity for Federal Incorporation of American Companies in China as distinct from the variety of provisions of 48 different State Charters under some one of which American firms in China must now operate.

QUESTION OF LAWS

"Every Company, whether British, French, Japanese or American, that operates in China does so under the laws of its own country. Thus, an American Company incorporated under the laws of the State of Delaware, doing business in China, is subject to the jurisdiction of the United States Court for China.

"Our laws under state charters are in many cases lax for corporations operating outside their local state jurisdiction. They were not framed or designed to meet trade conditions existing in countries such as China.

"The result is that American business operating out here under such State Incorporation Laws is handicapped. In cases where Chinese capital can be interested in American enterprise our Chinese friends want to put their money into an American Company. How many of them know or have heard anything of the protection afforded by the laws of Oklahoma, Dakota, Texas or even Delaware? How many of us as Americans know anything definite of all these varying state incorporation laws? Therefore, can we blame our Chinese friends for looking askance at proposals to put their money into our Companies under State Charters?

AS TO CREDITS

"Credits also are only with difficulty arrangeable with foreign banks unacquainted with the intricacies of State Incorporation Laws, and if American Companies are to meet strenuous competition in holding China trade, we must have legislation, national in character, which will place us on the same basis as our competitors.

"The question of credits with foreign banks is an important feature in trade in China. Some of these banks hold such a commanding position that it is practically impossible for big business to be done without their aid and support at times. This applies especially in connection with the intricacies of exchange. In order to obtain the best rates of the market for the conversion of our gold credits into silver for the purchase of goods in China or for the conversion of our silver into gold for the payment of drafts drawn on us for imports into China, American merchants must be free to operate with all the leading banks. Curtailment of credit facilities by any of such banks means injury to American trade interests.

POSITION OF BANKS

"The largest banking institutions operating in the Far East are British. In my experience, and in that of most American firms of old standing, we have found no distinction drawn by such banks on account of the nationality of their clients. Their policy has been broad and fair to all.

"The old established American houses in this country and American business men have always found these banks ready to handle any reasonable business proposed. With the advent, however, of a great many new American firms during recent years, these old established banking institutions with their branches and agencies in practically every trading center in the Far East, have come to question the status and responsibility of many of the American concerns who have opened up business in the Orient. They have found peculiar and unsatisfactory features in the charters and methods of accounting, capitalisation, &c., of firms working under all sorts of American State Charters.

"Rather than become involved in complications which leading lawyers in many cases could not advise them on, they have simply in cases of doubt, curtailed credits; and where they continued extending wide-open credits their only reason was that they knew and believed in the standing and integrity of the control and management of the concerns they were doing business with.

HERE IS REMEDY

"Their discrimination against the extension of more or less open credit facilities to new American firms, even if apparently heavily capitalised, is therefore not based on national reasons but results from their lack of confidence and ignorance of the system of State Charters under which such companies are organised.

"The remedy lies in providing laws for the Federal Incorporation of American Companies in China. Such laws will then become known to the financiers of every nation interested in banking in the Orient, and there will not be any question as to confusion in the laws governing American business in this country.

"In speaking of banking in China, I have referred to the large British institutions who now command the greater part of the finance of the country. Great advances have been made during recent years in the development of American banking in the Far East and praise is due to the efforts our bankers have made to back up American business. Nevertheless, we must realise that American banking in the Far East is still in its infancy in comparison to the institutions of other nations, and it will take years before our banks out here can take a leading position in the financial needs of the country and of the American merchant.

CREDITS DISCUSSED

"Gentlemen, I have no hesitation in saying to you that American bankers handling credits for American corporations operating in China under state incorporation laws, are just as much handicapped in dealing with such credits as bankers of foreign nationalities, and our American bankers will welcome the day when under Federal Incorporation Laws for American Companies operating in China they will know exactly where they stand in dealing with large credits to American Companies working out here.

"America is the only great nation which has not sought in China special spheres of influence. We have come into this country with clean hands to buy in China both countries, it is my natural desire to see them 'get together.'"

HIS PLATFORM

Asked what his platform in the approaching campaign would be, Dr. Reinsch states that he would confine himself very largely to the straight issues of the day, and that the Chinese question would enter very little into his pre-Senatorial pronunciamentos.

Returning to the subject of his platform, Dr. Reinsch placed himself unequivocally on record in favor of the League of Nations.

"I feel," he said, "that the people of the United States, almost to a man—and woman—want a League of Nations. Just what form that League is to take, only the passing years can tell. Just now it is our duty to accept the nearest thing to the real article as can be evolved.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS

"I believe that the form of the League which the National Democratic Convention in San Francisco recently agreed upon as acceptable, viz., the original Covenant with certain reservations, is the one which should be adopted—the sooner the better."

"Dr. Reinsch," asked the representative of The China Press, "dont you think that the action of the French Government in giving Emir Feisal 24 hours' notice to quit Damascus is an illustration of the impracticability—from an American standpoint—of a League of Nations, except it based upon the President's Fourteen Points?"

"Most emphatically, yes," said Dr. Reinsch. "The only safe and certain foundation is contained in The Fourteen Points."

"Especially self-determination?"

"Quite so—especially self-determination."

Dr. Reinsch left the national convention of his party at midnight of the night when Governor Cox was nominated, in order to prepare for his trip across the Pacific, which was to begin at noon the next day. He declared that the Administration forces in the convention had "willingly accepted Governor Cox" as a strong, representative Democrat; but opined that the White House group would perhaps have been a bit more pleased had either Mr. Palmer or Mr. McAdoo been selected.

"Governor Cox," he said, "was chosen principally because of the faith of the convention in his ability to carry the State of Ohio: but it is the consensus that he will run strongly, whatever the issue or locality."

Dr. Reinsch had high praise for the San Francisco Civic Auditorium, in which the convention was held, nominating it as one of the most perfectly-adapted convention halls he had ever entered.

MAKERS OF HISTORY

"Speaking from an absolutely non-partisan standpoint," he added, "the Democratic convention was one of the most remarkable political gatherings in the history of America. Every issue was fought out squarely on its merits and 'star-chamber' sessions were rigorously tabooed."

He paid particular compliment to the splendid speeches made by Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who opened the convention with a "key-note" address, and by William Jennings Bryan, advocating the adoption of the "dry" plank.

"They were both triumphs of oratory," he said, "and both received tremendous ovations from the big gatherings which heard them."

Dr. Reinsch goes from here to Peking, following which he may return to Shanghai or proceed directly to Japan, from whence he will return to America about a fortnight from now.

American Returned Students To Honor Reinsch And Arnold

Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, former United States Minister to Peking, and Mr. Julian Arnold, Commercial Attache to the American Legation at Peking, will be the guests of honor at a dinner to be given by the American returned students at the Great Eastern Hotel tomorrow night at 7:30 o'clock.

LODGE ADVOCATES PLAN

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge undertook to secure the approval of the Senate to an appropriation for the Pan-Pacific Union, on the ground that about the ever peaceful Pacific must be born the real League of Nations, and that beginning as Pan-Pacific it may grow into a Pan-World League.

The Hon. Stephen G. Parter, Chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives, now with our party, carried the appropriation through the House and became so interested in the ideals of the Pan-Pacific Union that he joined the party visiting Shanghai today.

We expect Shanghai to take the lead in Pan-Pacific work in China, gathering and exhibiting here the Chinese Art Commercial and Educational exhibits before sending them on to the Pan-Pacific Conferences for distribution in Pacific and other lands to educate there the people up to the advantages of the Oldest Civilisation in the World.

SKILL, COURAGE AND EXPERIENCE OFFTIMES FAIL IN SPORT CRISES WHEN PLAYER IS "OFF HIS GAME"

"New York Tribune" Expert Tells Of Historic Upsets Occasioned By Drop Of Logical Favorites Into Psychological "Slumps" Which Can't Always Be Explained

By Grantland Rice

A championship test isn't always a matter of skill, courage and experience. These are big factors—but not always decisive ones. Very frequently the test may depend upon an unknown and ungovernable quantity—the same being a matter of how your muscular and mental controls are working on the big day.

Last August or September, Johnston defeated Tilden at Forest Hills. In the London championship Johnston defeated Tilden again. Then Parke comes along and beats Johnston. Whereupon Tilden promptly eliminates Parke in straight sets.

Johnston was at his best against Tilden. But against Parke he was undoubtedly off. Something had gone wrong. It may have been a momentary staleness, due largely to the Californian's slight physique and the strain of the previous week's play. It may have been a matter of digestion. There are times when one never knows.

TRAINING FOR THE TEST

A man may train carefully and properly for the big test—and then find on the big day that his game has slipped.

There is undoubtedly a certain element of luck, very frequently, in reaching a championship just as you are coming upon your game. We recall two occasions when, if the open golf championship had been played a week earlier, Gil Nicholls would have won.

On each of those two occasions Nicholls led big fields by decisive margins the previous week. He had come to his top form just a shade too soon.

But the next week he was slipping.

Hagen was at his best when the open championship arrived in 1914 and 1919. In 1915 and in 1919 the big week found him out of gear, playing badly, and he finished well down.

Why? He merely happened to be off his best game when the title week came around.

THE FATAL SLUMP

A contender may have a bad slump at a lucky time where there is no big test to be faced. But he may also find himself unexpectedly caught in a bad slump just at the wrong time.

This has happened to football and baseball teams repeatedly. Good training and keen co-operation on the part of the athletes will frequently prevent this. But not always.

For there are times when, without rhyme or reason, a man suddenly finds himself playing poorly and nothing that he can do will get him back again in time.

And very frequently physical condition may have something to do with the slump. One may be feeling unusually keen, in top physical form, and suddenly discover that everything is going wrong. These are the occasions that bring about dismay beyond any words.

THAT ONE MEETING

One meeting very often proves but little. Fulton isn't as good a heavyweight as Dempsey is, but in that first and only clash it is entirely possible that he may have been out of gear, with Dempsey at his best.

Wilding beat McLoughlin easily at Wimbledon. A short while later at Forest Hills, McLoughlin had no great trouble in beating Wilding.

Mathewson has always figured that one of his great pitching feats came about in 1903, when he beat the Pittsburg champions either seven or eight times. Yet in 1908, when he came to the most important contest that he ever pitched, in the decisive meeting with the Cubs, when one game meant the pennant, he was caught with a dead arm, worn down by overwork.

At his best he might have added unusual luster to his already fine record on that afternoon. But the break was the other way.

THE GREAT THRILL

The great thrill of sport is to find yourself just come upon your game as the big week arrives.

In 1904 at Sandwich, Walter J. Travis had been playing badly for two weeks. Nothing went right. The harder he tried, the worse he seemed to get.

And then, as the amateur championship came in sight, he suddenly found himself recovering his lost touch. He had the great thrill of knowing that his game was coming back and so nothing could stop him.

The entry who finds himself at top form a week or 10 days before any important test has a hard road to travel. One of the hardest things in sport is to reach top form and then maintain it.

The Army used to reach top form for the Yale game, only to prove easy prey for the Navy. Whereupon, the Army decided to point for one game and the Navy's big bulge was checked.

It was Percy Haughton who first developed the idea of driving his team hard and then letting it loaf before the Yale game, in order that his men would come to the final contest keen for a game, rather than as a battered delegation that had been driven hard up to the final hour.

Lawn Bowls

(BY "SKIP")

The "Wallace" Cup Competition will be played off this afternoon beginning at 4:30, on the greens as given below. As every match is away from home it is particularly requested that any player not being able to turn out will notify his club secretary at once, to enable the latter to make other arrangements.

Given fine weather, this contest should prove the most novel on record, and it will be interesting to read the results in Sunday's Pink 'Un.

The full teams as selected are given here and players can see where they have got to journey.

The Club that wins by the biggest margin of shots lands the cup for a period of one year, and also has its name inscribed thereon.

The Cup is presented by a member of one of Shanghai oldest families, as the name testifies; and, although the donor will not be here to see it, he nevertheless will appreciate the sporting spirit in which the local bowlers have entered the competition.

The team to represent the Shanghai Lawn Bowls Club in their match against the Yangtszepoo Bowling Club at Wayside Park tomorrow afternoon is also given, below the others. The Yangtszepoo team is not yet to hand. Time to start, 4:30 p.m.

S.R.C TENNIS TEAM DEFEATS PORTUGUESE

Match Only Goes To Visitors In Last Set, Three Rubbers To Two

In a match marked by some very good and some very indifferent tennis, played on the courts of the Shanghai Recreation Club yesterday afternoon, the racket-wielders of that organisation defeated the team of the Club Unias (Portuguese Club) by a score of three rubbers to two.

The result of the match, which was a regular League affair, was in doubt until the last game of the last match, which went to five sets after the previous four pairs had gone "ping-ping" on the afternoon's play.

In the first rubber of the afternoon, played by H. B. Ollerdessen and J. L. Wade (S.R.C.) versus E. Leitao and R. Canavarro (P.C.), the latter romped home ahead after a hard deuce match. The scores were 1-6, 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5.

RECS TAKE LEAD

The Recs forged ahead in the second rubber, Messrs. T. W. R. Wilson and G. N. Manley defeating Messrs. Silva and R. Robento, 6-4, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4. This was also a hard-fought match and was featured by some excellent tennis on both sides.

The third rubber found Messrs. J. P. Hawes and J. A. Quayle (S.R.C.) opposed to Messrs. A. A. Leitao and A. Leitao (P.C.) and again went to deuce sets, the home team finally winning 7-5, 4-6, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1.

Messrs. V. O. Remedios and Gomez tackled Messrs. C. E. Ollerdessen and H. Stellingwerff in the fourth rubber and vanquished them somewhat easily in straight sets, 6-4, 9-7, 6-4.

LOST FIRST SET

With the rubber score at two-all, Messrs. R. J. S. Brandt and T. Veitch (S.R.C.) opposed Messrs. J. Campos and Ribiero (P.C.). The Rec team lost the first set by the somewhat ignominious score of 6-1 and the second somewhat more nobly by 6-4.

With defeat for themselves and their teammates staring them in the face, the two Rec players hereupon took a most startling "brace" and turned in a love set which totally discomfoozled the opposition.

Pressing their advantage, Messrs. Brandt and Veitch battered out a deuce set, 8-6, bringing the score to two-all, and then proceeded to walk off with set, rubber and match after a 6-4 contest which was full of thrills.

Altogether, a fine afternoon's sport was had.

COLUMBIANS WIN

In the series between the Columbia Country Club and the Portuguese Club, begun July 30 and completed on Thursday, the results were as follows:

Pott and Sheldon (C.C.C.) beat Leitao and Canavarro (P.C.) 6-4, 2-6, 7-5, 8-6, 6-3.

W. A. Roberts and Gulick (C.C.C.) beat R. Robanto and Silva (P.C.) 6-1, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4.

A. A. and A. R. Leitao (P.C.) beat Wythe and Dawson (C.C.C.) 7-5, 2-6, 8-6, 6-3.

Nichols and Atkinson (C.C.C.) beat Remedios and Gomes (P.C.) 6-3, 6-2, 8-6.

Campos and Ribiero (P.C.) beat Squires and Smith (C.C.C.) 6-0, 4-6, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

BY ERNEST R. GOSLING

Dear "Dud:"

I wonder if your readers would be interested in a reminiscence of the old days at the Empire City race-track, at Yonkers, New York—and a drink that cost each one of five hard-working young fellers about $200?

Several years ago I motored down to "Jim Butler's saucer," as Empire used to be called, with Ring Lardner, Grantland Rice, Herbert Swope of the New York World, and Jack Wheeler of the Wheeler Syndicate.

Each of the men-folks had his "storm and strife" along, 'ceptin' only me—'cause why, I haven't any marital entanglements—yet!

As usual, when you want to make a hit with the family by showing her how wondrous wise you are, the four "hubbies" lost steadily all afternoon. Since I was a guest, politeness compelled me to string with the bunch; so I was equally hammered in the first five races.

Finally old "You-Know-Me-Al" said he was going down into the paddock and get some of that resuscitating elixir known as "inside information." He came back with it, too—a sure-thing, jockey-owner-trainer, can't-lose tip on "Jack Mount," a good imported nag which had been working up to a good race, but against which the unsuspicious bookies were laying 8 to 1.

We all leaped for the betting ring, leaving the women-folk to place their wagers with the stand-commissioner. En route to the ring we ran into a famous New York sports writer who was very, very—well, we'll say far from sober.

He insisted that we have a drink. We did. Then he asked us to listen to a song he had just composed. We did. Then he insisted on just one more little drink. We did.

"Gosh!" yelled Swope, quite suddenly: "let's get those bets down!"

We rushed out of the cafe. Too late.

"They're off!"

And Jack Mount, on which we had each planned to bet at least $25, romped home a winner by ten lengths!

Did we call down apathema on the head of that woozy scribe? We did.

Did we each receive a bit of uxorious advice on the way home, from those four solvent and triumphant wives? We did.

Did we take it? We did—not!

Dear Dud.—Here's a little golfing experience that may prove interesting to the Shanghai "bugs."

Three of us, whom I will designate as Tom, Dick and Harry, were playing at Wheatley Hills, near New York, one day last fall, for $2 a hole. A "two-dollar cumulative syndicate," we called it. That is, when a hole was halved the next hole was for $4, and so on.

During the course of a game all three of us hit a streak of par golf, with each man playing perfectly; with the result that so many holes were halved that finally, when we came to the fifteenth hole—which measured some 400 yards—we had $44 tied up in the pool.

Naturally the situation was tense, as a single slip, the way all of us were going, meant the loss of the stake.

Tom, who had the honor, drove out of bounds, which put him out of the running. Dick laced a beautiful drive more than 200 yards straight down the alley, and Harry topped his ball, getting only about 10 feet from the tee.

On his second Harry hit a direction pole, the ball bounding back some twenty or thirty yards. His third, an iron shot, carried across the fairway into the rough, stopping some 230 or 240 yards from the hole.

While Harry was thus floundering Dick drove his second to the green, some ten feet from the pin; and, in his exultation, Dick had gone on to the green, where he stood, hee-hawing and pointing derisively to the pin, by way of giving Harry the proper direction for his next shot.

Harry, back in the rough, took out his brassie and slammed into the ball, which rose beautifully from the weeds and sailed on a dead line for the pin. It dropped between two bunkers guarding the green and rolled true as a die, squarely into the hole, giving him a par four!

Dick, as stated, was only ten feet from the pin, but in the face of the radically altered situation he had to get down in two for a half. Over-cautious, he played his approach putt short and missed his second, the ball stopping on the edge of the hole.

I'll say that brassie shot, sweetened by that missed putt, was some thrill!

Yours truly,

"Harry."

EXPERTS DIFFER ON CARPENTIER AND HIS CHANCE

French Heavyweight Boxer Has Not Had Real Try-out Since War

Any number of expert words have been written concerning Carpentier's rating with both sides covered. One Carpentier school insists that the Frenchman is merely a good boxer, lacking the power and stammia to meet a heavyweight such as Dempsey.

The other school insists that he is a marvel, capable of beating any one. But no one knows, for a very obvious reason. In his early tests the Frenchman was fighting around nineteen and twenty. This age is entirely too young for any heavyweight or middleweight to stand up against rugged opposition.

MAY HAVE CHANGED

After this the five-year war interval came, when Carpentier had to lend his hand to another type of scrapping. Since reaching the age of twenty-five or twenty-six, which is close to the prime of athletic life, the French star has faced no opponent of even average skill or ability. Beckett proved himself a false alarm when he required seventeen rounds to put away the ancient McGoorty.

You can't judge Carpentier at twenty-six by what he was at twenty. Dempsey at twenty was a second rater. He was twenty-three when he knocked out Fulton and bounded into his first real prominence.

Those who are judging Carpentier by his record of five or six years ago are judging him as a kid. He has done nothing since to be judged by.

SHANGHAI SWIMMING TEAM LEAVES FOR KOBE, WHERE THEY WILL MEET JAP MERMEN IN INTERPORT CONTEST

Locals, Minus Some Of Their Best Men, Far From Confident, But Determined To Do Their Best—Three-Day Program Planned—More To Come

By W. R. McCabe

Full of determination to return from Japan "with their shields or on them," eight sturdy swimmers are leaving today on the Chikugo Maru for Kobe, there to engage, probably next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, in an interport match with Japanese mermen.

The team as already announced in this paper actually materialised, with the solitary exception of Worwood (of the Police Club) who could not get away. The names of the men who are leaving today are: J. B. Brown, R. W. MacCabe, T. R. Macdonald, H. O. Wallin and T. W. R. Wilson (Rowing Club); C. Encarnacao, E. F. Mears and C. E. Ozorio (S.I.S.C.)

There is little to add to our former remarks on the chances of this team. They will unquestionably be weak, or at least not up to anything like the best local standard in the sprint races, diving or relay events.

They should be all right in the water polo, longer races, plunging and throwing the polo-ball.

PROGRAM IN DOUBT

No definite news has reached Shanghai as yet regarding the details of the proposed interport program; but it is expected that it will follow closely the lines set down on former occasions, when the old rivals Shanghai and Hongkong met.

The meet will probably be a three-day event, taking place next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, the 12th, 13th and 14th inst.

It is more than likely that it will be possible to arrange a three-cornered contest in at least some of the events by including Yokohama in the competitions, it being comparatively simple for the swimmers from the latter port to travel down by rail to Kobe.

A PLEASANT INNOVATION

In any case, this interport match marks a departure from the stereotyped contests between the local talent and that of the Crown Colony; and it will doubtless start the ball rolling agreeably.

We shall no doubt see many such contests staged here in Shanghai in the future, between our home teams and representatives from Dai Nippon.

Local sportsmen feel that it was very progressive of the Kobe men to inaugurate these competitions and they promise to "carry on."

The decision made by the committee to frank the passages to Kobe and back of those selected out of the ranks of the S.I.S.C. to represent Shanghai, was a very worthy one, and in line with the excellent record of the club in this regard, set on the occasion of the two former expeditionary forces which left Shanghai to represent the "Model Settlement" in interport contests with Hongkong.

MIXED-BATHING A SUCCESS

The mixed-bathing nights, we are informed, are proving a great success, the attendance numbering over 50 at present. It is anticipated that this attendance will be increased to a hundred or more very shortly.

A fast and furious contest is expected to result, as the teams are now tied for top honors.

America Must Provide For Companies In China, Seitz Tells Congressmen

the goods we need in our home markets, and to sell to the Chinese the goods and machinery they need for the development of the trade of China.

"The latent asset possessed by America in the goodwill of the Chinese has a value that only those of us, intimate with Chinese merchants and officials, can sufficiently realise. That goodwill of China towards us should be fostered and maintained in the interests of our merchants and in the building up of business for our American export manufacturers.

PREFER AMERICAN GOODS

"All things being equal, I firmly believe that the Chinese buyer will prefer to purchase American goods from American merchants.

"I say all things being equal," —but unfortunately they are not equal in that our main competitor, the British merchant, operates under wise and well-balanced laws governing incorporation of British Companies in China, and under such laws can secure better and easier credit facilities than are possible under State Incorporation charters for American Companies with doubt cast by our trade competitors on the status of such companies incorporated under our State Laws.

"Gentlemen, the remedy lies in the hands of our Government. It is up to our legislators in Washington to give us the laws we need. We have amongst us today some of the most influential representatives amongst our lawmakers in Washington, and we hope you will take to heart what we as the leading organisations representing trade in China, have told you here. If you will carry back to your colleagues in Washington the importance of the message which we desire to convey and thereby help to have Federal Incorporation Laws for American Companies in China granted, you will be conferring an inestimable benefit on American trade.

"Under the right kind of laws American business will flourish, and the day will not be far distant when the American merchant and the American banker will lead in Far Eastern trade.

"I now come to the second important issue in connection with the Federal Incorporation Laws for American Companies in China.

"That is, our demand for freedom in China and other extra-territorial countries, from the burden of Income and Excess Profits Taxes.

PROFITS IN WAR TIMES

"During the days of the War, American merchants in China were able to reap unusually handsome profits because America of all nations, was the only one able to sell export goods on a fairly large scale. During those days we were only too willing to contribute the taxes imposed by our Government to help carry the war to a successful issue.

"Normal conditions of trade are, however, now being rapidly re-established. European Governments, primarily that of Great Britain, are determined to win back their place in the markets of the world. Trade rivalry will be keen, and to hold the trade, which America has developed in the Far East during the last few years, means hard work on the part of the Americans who represent our commerce in China.

"In order to hold own own, we must be able to compete on the level. Any handicap placed on the American merchant operating in the Orient means handicapping the possibilities for the development of American export trade.

HONGKONG ORDINANCE

"To make myself plain, I will take a comparison between the status of our principal rival, the British merchant in China, operating under the Hongkong Ordinances, free from Income Tax and Excess Profits Taxes, and the American merchant subject to all the burdens of taxation applying in America.

"In the normal course of working in China, business seems to develop in cycles; there being ordinarily about two good and very profitable years, one or two slack years, and possibly two or three years when there are actual losses. The same may be said to apply to business in America. But, Gentlemen, you must realise that at home all competition is on an equal footing whereas in China the American merchant alone is taxed and the chief competitor, the British merchant, pays no income or excess profits taxes.

HELPS OVER BAD PERIODS

"The successful merchant in the import and export trade carries on his business on a basis of averages covering a range of years. He sets aside to reserves in profitable years, an adequate sum to cover possible losses which have to be faced in the lean years.

"The British merchant working on this basis, can carry on through bad periods.

"Our American merchant, on the other hand, is heavily taxed under our Income and Excess Profits Tax Laws, and in the good years of his trade in China is called upon to pay to our Government out of his profits, large sums to cover such taxes. These sums our British competitors are able to place to reserves out of their profits, and eventually can use these reserves in trade rivalry to oust American trade from the Orient when the lean years come along.

"Gentlemen, it must be evident to you that our American merchant handicapped by Income and Excess Profits Tax Laws cannot bear this burden in strenuous competition with the merchants of other nations and unless freed therefrom, the American merchant will in the long run have to go out of business in China.

"Such a condition will mean the "death" of American export trade to the Far East, and delay in giving us the relief we need is a "stab" by our own legislators at home at the development of business for the American manufacturer who must find an outlet for his product in foreign countries.

"On this subject there is also another and most important feature. It is desirable to interest Chinese capital in American Companies to build up joint interests in development in China of trading, mining and manufacturing enterprises. Can you conceive an intelligent Chinese merchant investing in such American Companies, burdened with taxation, when his capital can be put into British Companies under Hongkong Ordinances free from taxation?

PROTECTS SHIPPING

"The Jones Bill recently enacted, provides for the future of American shipping to protect American exports and American trade in foreign countries. It goes so far as to relieve the owner of ships from taxation so as to build up our Merchant Marine.

"We American merchants in China feel that we are entitled to similar relief from taxation. We are the advance agents of American commerce. We must have protective laws which will enable us to operate on an equal footing with the competing traders of other nationalities.

"The theory under which Great Britain extends facilities to her merchants in China in freeing them from Income and Excess Profits Taxes, is based on the idea that the risks of trade in the Orient are such that the average merchant cannot operate under the conservative lines obtaining under the more settled conditions in Great Britain and her dominions. In order to build up the trade of Great Britain for the sale of British manufacturers in foreign countries, British merchants are given every facility and protection. Sacrifice by the British Government of Income and Excess Profits Taxes on the earnings of British merchant traders in foreign countries and especially in the Far East, is based on the idea that the volume of business brought by such merchants to the British manufacturer is so valuable that the taxes in question are merely a nominal factor and can well be sacrificed to increase the national balance of trade.

ON AN EQUAL FOOTING

"This logical and correct view is one which our legislators at home should most carefully consider and must accept. It is a view to which they can surely not have so far given the right attention or we would long ago have had Federal Incorporation Laws for American Companies in China and provisions freeing such companies from Income and Excess Profits Taxes so that the American merchant would be able to compete in foreign countries on an equal footing.

"The argument may be advanced that Companies operating in America might attempt to take advantage of Federal Incorporation for American Companies in China to escape taxation by having nominal offices out here, whilst actually operating in America.

"It would not be difficult to have provisions in our laws protecting the Government from any misuse of the intent of the laws in question. The British Government has had no difficulties in this connection under its Hongkong Ordinances, and it should not be presumed that the American Government will have any difficulties under similar legislation which may be enacted by our lawmakers.

ASK SUPPORT

"Gentlemen, this covers the principal points in the issue which I have been requested to submit to you today. We ask your support and your help on your return to America so that through your efforts Congress may take action and give us the legislation we need. A Bill for the Federal Incorporation of American Companies in China, for which the Hon. Mr. Dyer, who is with us today, is sponsor, has had careful consideration in the Judiciary Committee. In asking your support for this Bill and to use your best influence to make it a law, we desire you to remember that today there is not a single American Corporation in China. Every American Company is operated under the laws of some individual state. We, the advance agents, promoters of American commerce in China and the Far East, appeal for national support so that we may derive the benefits of the prestige which will be accorded an 'American Corporation.'"

Cotton Market

Messrs. J. Spunt and Co. write as follows in their report dated August 7:

China Cotton.—Our market during the past week showed no signs of revival and practically very little business was consummated in spots, although prices for immediate deliveries with but slight fluctuations remain steady at the close.

The rates for New Season Cotton have firmed up somewhat, due to some tentative demand of a speculative nature having transpired during the week under review. However, a bearish sentiment is gradually insinuating itself on the strength of the favorable silver exchange, whereby the quantity of the imported staple may bring about a depreciating effect on local offerings but to what extent such will be realised it is difficult to foretell at the present time, as weather conditions here as well as in America and India should not be lost sight of when contemplating a supply for immediate and near future requirements. Tone of the market, Steady.

Siccawei Weather Reports

5.—The typhoon continues to incline to NE. and crosses Nippon by the N. of Tokio. Area of low pressures on the Yellow sea. A new low center is apparently in process of formation on the Pacific, far to the SE of the Loochoos. The heat continues at Shanghai and decreases somewhat in the N. Some thunder clouds, but very short shower in the afternoon.

6.—Very light, variable breezes, interrupted by dead calms. Thick fog at the early hours. The pressure rises a little, but is still far below the Normal level.

"Senator Reinsch"

ALMOST without exception, it seems safe to say, Americans residing or having interests of consequence in the Far East, will acclaim the action of the delegates Democratic State Convention of Wisconsin in unanimously selecting, as their choice for United States Senator, Dr. Paul Samuel Reinsch.

Thanks to his long and observing residence in China, during which he has intelligently collated a vast quantity of valuable information regarding the particular problems of the Orient in which America is—or should be—vitally interested, Dr. Reinsch seems eminently fitted for the task of explaining to the United States Congress many things about the Far East which at present seem to be cloaked in darkness.

During his service as American Minister at Peking, and afterwards as counsellor to the Chinese Republic, Dr. Reinsch had countless opportunities to gain the lasting friendship and confidence of the Chinese. That he made the most of these opportunities is indicated by his retention, following retirement from an official post in China, as chief-of-counsel for the Chinese Legation in Washington.

The day is here when America's boasted understanding of and interest in China are on trial. The day is also here when, in order to thoroughly comprehend the needs of American business men in the Far East, the Congress of the United States needs at least one well-informed member to guide its footsteps in the paths that they should go, with especial reference to this vast "Mother of Asia," now yearning to give her treasures to the world in exchange for Progress, Development and Modernity.

Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, if the State of Wisconsin is a wise and considerate integer of the body politic of America, will be that man.

The former Minister is in no sense a back-room politician. If he is elected to the Senate of the United States it will have to be by reason of the intelligence and desire of the voters of Wisconsin for utilitarian representation in the Upper House.

Against Dr. Reinsch will be arrayed some powerful Republican forces—Senator La Follette at the head of one faction, Senator Lenroot leading another—and the mighty machinery of a strong political organisation.

Fortunately for Dr. Reinsch, the Republicans are not in entire accord. Indeed, the two Senators are reported to be at political swords' points. Senator Lenroot, who is expected to be a candidate for reelection, will be bitterly opposed, we are told, by Senator LaFollette.

Out of this "family row" the Democrats may be expected to make all the capital they can. On the wings of the controversy, indeed, Dr. Reinsch may even fly into the United States Senate.

Be that as it may, the State of Wisconsin can serve well, not only itself but the people of the United States, by sending as one of its two representatives in the Upper House of Congress as wise and able an interpreter of Far Eastern affairs as Dr. Paul Samuel Reinsch.

Effects Of Foreign Education In Chinese Homes

THE first of our women readers to respond to "A Young Husbands" appeal published yesterday, is Mrs. F. J. White, wife of the President of Shanghai College, who tells what is being done at that institution towards solving the problem indicated by our caption. It is a very interesting letter and we hope that other educators will let us know what they are doing and what they plan to do in this matter. Owing to lack of space we are compelled to hold over a number of interesting letters dealing with this question. Here is Mrs. White's letter:

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir: Apropos of the recent discussion called forth by Miss Kwei's letter, I should like to tell what we are trying to do at Shanghai College to help make happy homes in China. As one of the later writers said, a foreign education is not the only or chief cause of unhappiness in China. Childhood betrothal and early marriage, and may I add, the lack of a separate home for the young people, are the chief causes of unhappiness.

As long as the young men and women are ignorant and uneducated they bear their burdens of unhappiness without much complaining. The better their education and the more they come in contact with the homes in western nations, the less willing are they to endure what they believe to be a threefold crime against their future homes.

At our college we early saw that many of our young men would make shipwreck of their homes unless we helped them. A Christian Home Club was organised and nearly all of our students are members of the club, studying and working together, as a body and as individuals, to make happy homes in China. The young men are trying to train themselves to be good husbands and fathers. They have decided that the one thing indispensible to a real home is an educated and enlightened wife and mother. Every man who has been by his parents married or engaged to be married is trying to have his wife or fiance educated, and all who have thus far escaped early betrothal and marriage are trying valiantly to persuade their parents that to delay until an educated girl can be chosen for a wife will insure later peace and advantage to the family.

The social conditions in China are now in a chaotic condition. Many mistakes are going to be made and many hearts broken unless all the forces that seek to help China, work together in the reformation of Chinese society, taking, as has been so often said in these late letters, all the good of the old Chinese social customs and adding to them the best from foreign countries. The Chinese young people themselves, must do this. We at the College believe that they can best be trained for this stupendous task by living and working together during the four years of college life.

Every man and woman thus trained, if the surroundings are the best that a knowledge of and love for old China combined with an effort to bring the best from Christian lands can make them, will be able to go out and be a leader in the social life of his community, molding the society of new China and helping to make real homes in China. Thanking you,

Mrs. F. J. White.

The Sound Of The Sea

[Longfellow]

The sea awoke at midnight from its sleep
And round the pebbly beaches far and wide
I heard the first wave of the rising tide
Rush onward with uninterrupted sweep;
A voice out of the silence of the deep
A sound mysteriously multiplied,
As of a cataract from the mountain's side
Or roar of winds upon a wooded steep.
So comes to us at times, from the unknown,
And inaccessible solitudes of being
The rushing of the sea-tides of the soul;
And inspirations that we deem our own
Are some divine foreshadowing and foreseeing
Of things beyond our reason or control.

LINES FROM LETTERS

Dear Mutt: The man who "fathered" the Prohibition Amendment in the Lower House of Congress has just perspired into Shanghai and there is trouble in store for the Model Settlement. Rep. Randall of California found that in Manila the new Amendment had been neglected, and he was hardly here three minutes before he found that local Americans had almost forgotten that "My Country 'Tis Of Thee" had gone dry to the bone. And what do you know? Randall is setting out to make that new law apply extra-territorially. Can't you see the complications? You go to the Astor, or the Carlton, or the Hole-In-The-Wall or All-Over-The-Place and ask for a drink. The boy says "You b'long Amelican?" Being a son of Washington you hesitate, but the temptation is too great, you deny the soft impeachment. Then the boy asks "Can you say all of 'Star Spang' Bannee?" and you fail to give a correct rendering. The boys replies "You b'long Amelican all light, I no can pay you dlink." And there Mutt you have the beans all spilt. Mutt, ole dear, this is whale of a life. Yours thirstily,

—Jeff.

Spain At The Cross-Roads -:- By Arthur Livingston

(The Nation)

In the debates that went on in the Spanish Cortes from the middle of December to the end of April—and they constitute one of the most remarkable Parliamentary episodes of Spanish history—reactionary forces seem to have had a shade the better of it. Attempting to conciliate liberal and conservative opinion, Mr. Alejandro Lerroux and even Mr. Melquiades Alvarez stepped so far over to the Right that most of the glamor of uncompromising idealism which has sustained the radical minorities in the past was dimmed. These men looked more like politicians than they have ever looked before. Whereas, the frank conservatism of men like Mr. La Cierva shone, among all the compromises, with a halo of patriotic strength. In Spain, as elsewhere, nothing is ever more impressive than a conservative statesman leading a mob in defense of law and order. This was the impressiveness of Mr. La Cierva.

The "boss of Murcia," however, showed his hand throughout the whole parliamentary struggle as a politician of great astuteness, his cleverest stroke being an attitude on the railroad strike which won applause from all the liberal and radical moderates.

That the present situation in Spain is intolerable everybody will grant. It is the most surprising situation that has confronted any nation in Europe since the Russian Revolution. That situation has been little understood outside of Spain for the very simple reason that it came into being in 1917, when the world was absorbed in the war, and when, as regards Spain, the only question interesting abroad was the country's attitude toward intervention in the great conflict. However, the formulae of "pro-German" and "pro-Ally" meant little when applied to the episodes in Spanish political and social life, as a brief review of the outstanding facts will demonstrate.

When Alfonso, in the month of August, 1917, took to his yacht in the harbor of San Sebastian, ready to sail for England at a moment's notice, nine Spaniards out of ten expected a republican revolution, and about that percentage wanted a revolution. The trouble was very simple. More than that it was banal, with a banality which only European bureaucracies understand: when a series of promotions had been announced by the Minister of War, the officers of the army had declared against Alfonso. The cause of dissatisfaction in the army was the alleged favoritism in these promotions. Alfonso always took a great personal interest in the military and was in direct contact with the capital garrison. The younger subalterns in the military hierarchy, stationed in Africa, in the Islands, and in the outlying districts and provincial cities, became convinced that they were the victims of discrimination in favor of officers enjoying the superior amusements and the superior opportunities of court life.

This dissatisfaction was the origin, in 1917, of the juntas de defensa, secret associations of the officers of lower rank for mutual protection in their careers against the generals and higher officers, and especially against the General Staff made up of Alfonso's personal friends. In organisation and purpose, to a certain extent also in tactics, the juntas resemble the labor syndicates of Catalonia. Like the anarchistic unions of Barcelona and its vicinity, their effective association is "underground," and reveals its power in action only. The juntas are another example of the characteristic romanticism of Spain.

The crisis of 1917 did not long remain the scope of bureaucratic log-rolling. The leaders of the Left in Spanish politics, the radical Liberals, the Republicans, the Reformists, and the Socialists, decided that in this army agitation the favorable moment had come for the political regeneration of Spain. A secret meeting of these leaders and the representatives of the juntas was held at Madrid, and a program of "peaceful revolution" was drawn up. This plan was in its general outlines public property. A general strike of labor was to be called by Socialist and syndicalist organisations. The radical parliamentary leaders were to summon the deputies whom the Ministry was refusing to assemble and declare Parliament in session as a Constituent Assembly. The army officers were to depose their generals and declare for the republic, recognised as operative in the Assembly.

These plans were laid with the secrecy of a presidential boom by an American favorite son. Everyone knew of them, from the king to the beggar on the street. This was the occasion of Alfonso's reported offer to resign and to accept a post in a republican army in exchange for the cares of the throne. The publicity given in advance to the revolutionary enterprise in order to prepare public opinion for a peaceful revolution gave the opportunity for some very deft maneuvering on the part of the conservatives. The revolutionary forces were made up of three elements: the military, demanding bureaucratic army reform; the middle classes weary of governmental inefficiency; and the industrial proletariat, eager for socialistic or syndicalistic revolution. This heterogeneous coalition was broken in the middle by a series of episodes cleverly managed from the neighborhood of the throne. The liberal middle class elements in Spain are perfectly willing to dispense with the Monarchy provided they receive guarantees that the "revolution will not go too far." They demand that property and life be respected by the subversive forces. Whatever the reasons that have in the past actuated Spain in preserving the Throne, that institution is being maintained by the middle classes of Spain today as an alternative to a socialistic or a communistic regime.

This was the loophole for a royalist counter-offensive. Agents provocateurs called a premature strike of workingmen in Valencia and other centers. Mobs were led against the shopkeepers. There was rioting and looting. Numerous assaults were made by workers upon members of the rich middle class. On the line to Barcelona, rails were torn up in the path of a military train, which was wrecked with serious loss of life.

The conservative press took up the slogan: "Peaceful revolution is impossible. The present order is the sole guaranty of life and property. The parties of the Left have no personalities strong enough to control the appetites of the mob." The strikes, made to Government order in the summer of 1917, wearied the proletariat; but as they were interpreted to the public, they terrified the middle classes. Alfonso however was helpless before the military. He surrendered, dismissing his General Staff and accepting the dictation of the juntas in reconstituting it. The juntas were satisfied. They were not interested in revolution or in republics. The general strike came off on schedule time in August; and the deputies came together in unofficial session. But the army did not move nor did the public. A few Socialists were put in jail. A few radical papers were suppressed temporarily for having advocated revolution. Thus the crisis of 1917 passed; or rather, the crisis of 1917 changed its form and continued, as it continues today.

The only persons who gained their point in 1917 were the military officers organised in the juntas. They exacted from Alfonso a surrender as abject and humiliating as any sovereign submitted to in the throne-wrecking years from 1916 to 1918. With the collapse of his personal authority went also the collapse of parliamentary government. The Ministries of Spain since that time have been bookkeeping establishments, maintained to collect taxes, to pay bills, and to transact routine business. The juntas de defensa, the army officers, clubs, without whose consent no Cabinet can act, decide all issues that involve a test of authority.

Such issues during the past two years have been four. The first case was that of Captain Boyer. Captain Boyer, a member of the juntas, was a German agent commissioned to watch Allied shipping in Spanish waters and to reprovision the submarines from Spanish ports. Denounced and exposed by the Allied secret service, Captain Boyer was arrested on a number of indictments. At the demand of the juntas he was released and never brought to trial.

The second case was that of the Committees of Vigilance in Barcelona. To repress syndicalistic agitation in Catalonia, the younger elements of the middle classes organised in armed groups and asked police authority from the Romanones Ministry. The Ministry refused this request on constitutional and practical ground. The military governor of Barcelona thereupon deposed the civil authorities, drove them out of the city, and appointed a representative of the vigilantes, Bravo Portillo, to the position of chief of police. Bravo Portillo was assassinated by the syndicalists. The Romanones Ministry resigned.

The third case was that of the "lockout." The Sanchez-Toca Ministry ordered the lockout to cease and undertook legal measures to enforce arbitration of the industrial troubles in Catalonia. The juntas declared for the employers, and prevented the Government's intervention. The Sanchez-Toca Ministry resigned on the ostensible issue of the budget. The lockout degenerated into a war of extermination by murder, conducted by syndicalists with great success against employers, and by employers with some success against labor leaders.

The fourth case was that of the "scab" officers, expelled from the army by courts of honor for protesting against the attitude of the juntas in the present industrial struggle. The Government ordered the protesting officers reinstated. They were retried by courts of honor and re-expelled. The Government of Allende-Salazar acquiesced in the dismissal.

This helps to define the character and the limits of the situation in Spain. The seat of ultimate authority rests not with the King nor with the Ministry, nor yet with Parliament, but with the unions of army officers, who exert their power in secret ways and whose rule is wholly extra-legal. Spain is thus the best example of middle-class sovietism.

There are, however, two disquieting facts in this rule of the juntas. The first is that their strength rests on the presupposition that the rank and file of the army will obey orders. That even the juntas are not entirely certain of the validity of this premise, which the Saragossa mutiny has recently called in question, is obvious from the military policy in Barcelona. Sustaining the employers as against the Government, the juntas are careful to do nothing to arouse the population. They have not dared to exert real power against the syndicalists. The second fact is that the juntas today, just as in 1917, could go over to the revolution.

Mr. La Cierva's solution was to recognise the class struggle, to legalise frankly the actually dominant control of the army officers, put a military government behind the employers, and remove industrial anarchy by force. The Reformist and Republican solution was to assert parliamentary authority over the army, to enforce the law upon both syndicalists and employers, and to temporise with the industrial problem in Spain by legalising syndicalist organisation and compelling adjustments of labor disputes.

The doubtful elements in Mr. La Cierva's program was its practicability. That it might be desirable to shoot a few hundred labor leaders in Spain and imprison a few thousand others, no respectable business man could deny. But who, exactly, was to do the shooting? And would such drastic methods kill or stimulate labor unrest? The radical program of Mr. Melquiades Alvarez or Mr. Lerroux might also involve chaos. If the juntas should stand out against a Republican or Reformist Ministry, the only recourse would be to appeal to the army against the officers, an appeal that would have to be carried by way of the proletariat. And was there in Spain, in such a case, a man or an institution strong enough to fix the limit to which such a turmoil might go?

While the situation, a few weeks ago, seemed hopelessly deadlocked, the railroad strike intervened to divert attention from the lawlessness in Catalonia to the more moderately inclined agitation in the rest of Spain. Mr. La Cierva was shrewd enough to assume a liberal position on the question of the strike settlement, and thus prepare the road for a rapprochement between the conflicting parliamentary groups. It is well to bear in mind certain definite tendencies in Spanish society. The most important of these is the growth of socialistic trade unionism in all of Spain south of the Ebro, and the evolution of Catalonian syndicalism away from the ideas of Bakunin and Kropotkin, towards those of Jouhaux and the French National Economic Council. The second is the powerful influence that British liberalism has been exerting on the Spanish middle classes. These tendencies have enabled all the elements of "law and order" more or less consciously to consolidate, and find, even, a basis of vitality for the spiritually defunct parties of the Right. With Reformism showing more clearly its conservative essence and with the false issue of republicanism superseded, radical ideas in Spain are freer to express themselves through Socialist agitation. The clearer definition of issues, to which the Socialist municipal victories have also noticeably contributed, tends to stabilise conditions for the moment. And the proof is that Mr. Dato, one of the "Big Six," again ventures to assume a ministry which for over a year has been by common consent relegated to sub-lieutenants of the real leaders. The juntas meanwhile can afford to be calm. For it is only in moments of crisis that the real authority in Spain is obliged to assert itself.

The Woman Who Feared Interment

Those who knew Mrs. Patrick Hardman, a wealthy resident of Drogheda, in Ireland, were familiar with the single fear which obsessed her almost from her youth, a fear of being buried alive.

"It is not death of which I am afraid," she would exclaim, "but of being thought dead before life has actually left my body."

It was in vain that members of her family remonstrated with her, saying that when she died the physician would examine her body very carefully and that there was no danger whatever of a premature burial. She listened, but she had worked out a plan in her own mind which would effectually prevent such an occurrence.

Calling one of her daughters, she gave explicit instructions that a very valuable ring was to be placed upon her finger the moment that she was supposed to be dead, and that the ring was to be allowed to remain there for eight days, the body meanwhile resting in a crypt or vault. Sensing her mother's purpose, but not wishing to disregard her wishes, the daughter agreed, and when a year or two later, Mrs. Hardman died at the age of 63, the ring was placed as she had directed.

The following night the Hardman butler entered the crypt and attempted to steal the ring. The force with which he jerked at it roused the woman from the cataleptic trance into which she had fallen, and her screams aroused the household. When they entered the vault they found the supposed dead woman sitting bolt upright and crying, "There, I told you this might happen!"

It was not until 19 years later that she died and was buried, after the eight-day period, in the neighborhood cemetery.

Hall's Distemper has led the way to a new era in house decoration—the era of brighter, cleaner and healthier homes.

It is the most durable of all decorations, lasting for years with freshness unimpaired, whereas wall-papers deteriorate from the first day by fading and accumulating dust and dirt.

Hall's Distemper is a thorough disinfectant, and is applied directly upon the wall, forming a hard surface, from which dust and dirt may be "spring-cleaned" by lightly sponging with warm water.

Hall's Distemper (Registered Trade Mark)

There Will Never Be A Crowd Round The Gate Of Progress

"Bacon with all his abounding belief in utilitarianism was so convinced that he lived in the old age of humanity that he could not realise the possibility of an indefinite advance in the future. HOPE AS A MORAL VIRTUE

"Dean Inge's Romanes' Lecture on 'The Idea of Progress,' which has been so widely quoted and commented upon in the newspapers, has not always received quite accurate representation, the comments being made, admittedly in several cases, from summaries rather than from the full lecture itself. We think, therefore, that our readers will be interested in reading the fine passage in which Dr. Inge sums up his argument, in the words of the full report (Oxford Clarendon Press, 2s.)," says the Manchester Guardian.

"The general tendency of the lecture is now fairly well known, though we have not seen sufficient emphasis laid upon the saving quality of hope—'No other religion, before Christianity, ever erected hope into a moral virtue.' The Dean discredits the idea of a physical, mental, and moral progress developing, willy-nilly, as part of a natural law of evolution. In fact,' he says, 'the superstition which is the subject of this lecture has distorted Christianity almost beyond recognition.'

THE BELIEF IN IMMORTALITY

"We quote the conclusion of the lecture:—

"'Plato says of his ideal state that it does not much matter whether it is ever realised on earth or not. The type is laid up in heaven, and approximation to it will be made from time to time, since all living creatures are drawn upwards towards the source of their being. It does not matter very much if he was right in believing—as we, too, believe—in human immortality. And yet it does matter; for unless our communing with the eternal ideals endow us with some creative virtue some power which makes itself felt upon our immediate environment, it cannot be that we have made those ideals in any sense our own.

"'There is no alchemy by which we may get golden conduct out of leaden instincts—so Herbert Spencer told us very truly; but if our ideals are of gold, there is an alchemy which will transmute our external activities, so that our contributions to the spiritual temple may be no longer "wood, hay and stubble," to be destroyed in the next conflagration, but precious and durable material.

FEW THAT FIND THIS GATE

"'For individuals, then, the path of progress is always open,' added the Dean; 'but as Hesiod told us long before the Sermon on the Mount, it is a narrow path, steep and difficult, especially at first. There never will be a crowd gathered round this gate; "few there be that find it." For this reason we must cut down our hopes for our nation, for Europe, and for humanity at large, to a very modest and humble aspiration. We have no millennium to look forward to; but neither need we fear any protracted or widespread retrogression.

"'There will be new types of achievement which will enrich the experience of the race; and from time to time, in the long vista which science seems to promise us, there will be new flowering-times of genius and virtue, not less glorious than the age of Sophocles or the age of Shakespeare. They will not merely repeat the triumphs of the past, but will add new varieties to the achievements of the human mind.

"'Whether the human type itself is capable of further physical or moral improvement we do not know. It is safe to predict that we shall go on hoping, though our recent hopes have ended in disappointment. Our lower ambitions partly succeed and partly fail, and never wholly satisfy us; of our more worthy visions for our race we may perhaps cherish the faith that no pure hope can ever wither, except that a purer may grow out of its roots.'"

THE IDEA OF PROGRESS

Simultaneously with Dean Inge's address is published a book on the same subject by Prof. Bury, "The Idea of Progress; an Inquiry into its Origin and Growth" "(Macmillan, 14s. net).

"Professor Bury," says the Spectator, "begins by pointing out that while all increases in power and knowledge depend on human effort, the idea of the progress of humanity, from which all these particular progresses derive their value, raises a definite question of fact, which man's wishes or labors cannot affect.' Our experience is so limited that we cannot tell whether or not the movement of the world is in a direction ultimately desirable. Even in the field of science, where every step forward has led to other steps, we cannot be assured that some time we will not reach a point where much remains to be discovered, but our means of investigation have been exhausted; in the moral and social sphere it is even less certain that there will be any continuity of development. Progress, therefore, is either true or false, but it cannot be proved. 'Belief in it is an act of faith.'

TIME AGAINST HUMANITY

"In the pre-Christian ages there was no such faith. The pervading theory was that mankind was passing through a period of degeneration, and that the 'Golden Age was decisively past. Time was felt to be against humanity. Similarly the concept of the imminent end of the world which colored Christian thought up to the close of the Dark Ages was antagonistic to a theory of Progress. It was hardly possible to imagine any substantial improvement taking place in the universe in the short space that remained before it was involved in the final catastrophe. In the Renaissance men's eyes were opened, but they used them to look back; they were rediscovering and imitating the Classics, not finding new points of departure."

THE BELIEF IN PROGRESS

The Times Literary Supplement takes these two books by Dean Inge and Professor Bury as the subject of its first article:—

"Of all modern ideas the belief in progress is perhaps the one which has come nearest to the strength of a religion; and, like a religion, it is exposed to vicissitudes from the moods and circumstances of its believers," it says. "It has known, in a short life, the fervours of enthusiasm and the peace of establishment. Very diverse optimisms have lodged in its branches. There could be no livelier proof of its elasticity and motive force as an idea than that its staunchest adherents should have been two such utterly different sets of people as the French Revolutionaries and the Victorians.

"Yet it was not a mere accident of history which transferred idealism of the first to the ideals, with a cash basis, of the second. There is something in its very nature which invites us to embrace it in passionate action, or repose on it comfortably as a fact. Like most of the ideas which move men, it has two faces. As an ideal it inspires men to give effect to it and make the world of their desire. But it could never have arisen as an ideal unless there were facts to suggest it, and it must wither if they refuse their support.

"'A belief in progress obliges you to accept the test of reality, for it holds up, not a Utopia, but an actual or possible fact. It reaches full expansion when it becomes a belief in something universally true. So Professor Bury, in his introduction to a book which was greatly worth writing ranges it with other ideas bearing on the mystery of life, like that of immortality, which we adopt or reject because we think them true or false; and he distinguishes it from those human ideals, such as liberty or equality, which we estimate according to our view of them as good or bad.

THE RING OF PERSONALITY

"Professor Bury is the historian of the Eastern Empire and the interpreter of Gibbon and in opinion he may be described, we imagine, as a rationalist. Dr. Inge is a Christian Platonist, the representative of a line of thought which descended from Alexandria to the Cambridge theologians of the seventeenth century.

"Whether his readers accept his unsparing analysis or not, they have learned to treat him with respect as one of the few minds of the time that are free from shibboleths. An independent judgment which is obviously an expression of character gives his lecture the true ring of personality.

"Professor Bury's book seems, by contrast, extremely impersonal. He has taken a purely historical survey of the idea of progress, as it passed through the minds which have made it, confining his own part, except for a few reflections at the beginning and end, to occasional sidelights and criticisms. The result is a sound piece of pioneer work, with its merits and limitations. If the history of an idea is to have all its interest and value, it requires a criticism of the idea itself as well as its story and needs to be written by one who is as much a thinker as a historian.

"Had Professor Bury taken this point of view he would have distinguished the various forms of the idea more clearly, and would have fertilised the book by his thinking. Only his knowledge of the subject and its intrinsic interest have saved his book from falling into the class of those which are less often read than consulted. As it is, the dramatic value in the rise of this idea carries one through the series of variations played on a single theme; and Professor Bury has condensed the results of his work with remarkable ease and brevity, and always with fairness.

MAN'S FAITH IN HIS DESTINY

"The last words of our two inquirers suggest that the belief in progress is on the way to being viewed with detachment, and perhaps dismissed with superiority. These, however, are not the feelings with which one reads the story of the idea as it is unfolded in Professor Bury's record; for it appears there less as a vaulting ambition than as an expression, slowly reached, of man's faith in his own destiny. It was the reply of human reason to one shock of change after another. This provides what we have called its dramatic value; and not the least interest of Professor Bury's book is that he brings that movement into light.

"The idea of progress was the refuge men discovered when the idea of Providence was shaken.

"Only after the old scheme of the universe, centered round the earth, had been shattered by the new astronomy did it take definite form. It was more than a coincidence that Fontenelle, the first populariser of astronomy, was also the first dogmatist of progress.

"The impulse to make a shelter against an indifferent universe repeated itself in the nineteenth century. Darwinism struck a final blow at man's privileged status; he was no longer the isolated lord of his own planet. With an unbeaten optimism he wrested triumph out of this discovery, and the moment when he was apparently reduced to his lowest terms was the one when progress was confidently affirmed as a universal law by Spencer. The idea evolves in a typically human way; it is easy to say that it was all too human. But, being human ourselves, we must feel a sympathy and admiration for this resourceful optimism, even if we have a lurking suspicion of its fallacy.

"The thought of progress expresses man's determination to perfect his earthly home, and this secular idealism has linked it at every turn with science."
